Between a rock and a hard place: means that you are faced with a choice between two equally unsatisfactory options.

Nip something in the bud: This is to stop a bad situation from becoming worse by taking action at an early stage of its development.

To hold out an olive branch: extending a hand of friendship and offering peace to a rival.

Beat around the bush: This means you spend a long time getting to the main point of what you're actually trying to say.

Out of the woods: This means the worst part of a difficult situation is over, and the end goal is in sight.

Barking up the wrong tree: This means that efforts have been put into something that won't produce the desired outcome.

Voice change

- In grammar, "Voice" means the form of verb by which the relation of the subject to the action implied is indicated.
- In other words, voice is the form of the verb which indicates whether the subject does the work or something has been done to it.

Kinds of voice:

(i) Active voice

(ii) Passive voice

ACTIVE VOICE

- When the subject of a sentence is the doer of the action, the verb is in the active voice. It is so because the subject is active.
- The active voice describes a sentence where the subject directly performs the action.

For example- I do the work

She/he does the work

PASSIVE VOICE

- When the subject of a sentence is acted upon, the verb is in passive voice. It is so because the subject is passive.

For example-

This work is done by me.

This work is done by her/him

- Every sentence in the passive voice contains two verbs-

(i) "to be" verb-be, am, are, is, was, were, been and being.

(ii) The main verb's past participle.

- Active-Passive Relation:

	Subject	Verb	Object
Active	Rani	opened	the door
